

Proposed Witchcraft Convictions (Pardons) (Scotland) Bill

Introduction

A proposal for a Bill to pardon all those convicted under the Witchcraft Act 1563.

The consultation runs from 23 June 2022 to 15 September 2022

All those wishing to respond to the consultation are strongly encouraged to enter their responses electronically through this survey. This makes collation of responses much simpler and quicker. However, the option also exists of sending in a separate response (in hard copy or by other electronic means such as e-mail), and details of how to do so are included in the member's consultation document.

Questions marked with an asterisk (*) require an answer.

All responses must include a name and contact details. Names will only be published if you give us permission, and contact details are never published – but we may use them to contact you if there is a query about your response. If you do not include a name and/or contact details, we may have to disregard your response.

Please note that you must complete the survey in order for your response to be accepted. If you don't wish to complete the survey in a single session, you can choose "Save and Continue later" at any point. Whilst you have the option to skip particular questions, you must continue to the end of the survey and press "Submit" to have your response fully recorded.

Please ensure you have read the consultation document before responding to any of the questions that follow. In particular, you should read the information contained in the document about how your response will be handled. The consultation document is available here:

Q1. Which of the following best expresses your view of the proposed Bill? (Please note that this question is compulsory.)

Fully supportive

Please explain the reasons for your response.

The torture, prosecution, and executions of people, largely women, in Scotland for witchcraft is an abhorrent stain on our history. We need to acknowledge it and the suffering caused, in order to be able to honestly remember our history. It would be a step towards a more respectful attitude towards the accused 'witches', and away from the stereotypes and cliches which poke fun at the situation. Women are still called 'witch' as an insult today. And in some countries people are still being prosecuted and harmed for 'witchcraft'. History should be acknowledged publicly, both the good and the bad. A healthy society must be able to point to the past and know it was wrong, in order to avoid similar situations in the future. The stories of 'witches' and their executions has been so trivialised, but then weaponised when it benefits people. Scotland has much to be proud of in its history and in the present, but it must do what it can to apologise for its past wrongs in order to be able to stand up to present day injustice. To be able to stand up and say we were wrong, and to pardon those persecuted, can only be a good thing. At a time when women's rights are being eroded elsewhere, this seems like a small move to do some good to counter such wrongs.

Q2. Do you think legislation is required, or are there other ways in which the proposed Bill's aims could be achieved more effectively? Please explain the reasons for your response.

No Response

Financial Implications

Q3. Any new law can have a financial impact which would affect individuals, businesses, the public sector, or others. What financial impact do you think this proposal could have if it became law?

no overall change in costs

Please explain the reasons for your answer.

It's mostly symbolic. And considering the people in question lost their lives, any present day cost is surely the least owed to the dead and tortured.

Equalities

Q4. What overall impact is the proposed Bill likely to have on equality, taking account of the following protected characteristics (under the Equality Act 2010): age, disability, gender re-assignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, sexual orientation?

Positive

Sustainability

Q5. Any new law can impact on work to protect and enhance the environment, achieve a sustainable economy, and create a strong, healthy, and just society for future generations.

Do you think the proposal could impact in any of these areas? (If you do not have a view then skip to next question)

Please explain the reasons for your answer, including what you think the impact of the proposal could be, and if there are any ways you think the proposal could avoid negative impacts?

No Response

General

Q6. Do you have any other additional comments or suggestions on the proposed Bill (which have not already been covered in any of your responses to earlier questions)?

No Response
