Questions marked with an asterisk (*) require an answer.

All responses must include a name and contact details. Names will only be published if you give us permission, and contact details are never published – but we may use them to contact you if there is a query about your response. If you do not include a name and/or contact details, we may have to disregard your response.

Please note that you must complete the survey in order for your response to be accepted. If you don't wish to complete the survey in a single session, you can choose "Save and Continue later" at any point. Whilst you have the option to skip particular questions, you must continue to the end of the survey and press "Submit" to have your response fully recorded.

Q1. Which of the following best expresses your view of the proposed Bill? (Please note that this question is compulsory.)

Fully opposed

Please explain the reasons for your response.

This legislation is a colossal waste of parliamentary time. It is totally meaningless to talk about legally pardoning the dead, since they are beyond the reach or scope of the law. Any injustices they suffered can only be remedied by God now.

The devolved Scottish parliament constituted in 1998 has no responsibility for Scottish law or legal proceedings that occurred in the 17th Century, and nothing it does can affect those events or the people who took part in them.

Furthermore, when Scotland faces serious issues regarding drug deaths, its economy, its current constitutional status, its railways and ferries, etc, etc it is appalling that it would seek to waste precious parliamentary time on this kind of content-free moral grandstanding.

Q2. Do you think legislation is required, or are there other ways in which the proposed Bill's aims could be achieved more effectively? Please explain the reasons for your response.

The Bill's aims were achieved over 200 years ago, which was roughly the time most people realised and accepted that executing people for witchcraft was a huge mistake and a moral injustice. Nothing the Scottish parliament does in 2022 can add to that at all.

Financial Implications

Q3. Any new law can have a financial impact which would affect individuals, businesses, the public sector, or others. What financial impact do you think this proposal could have if it became law?

Please explain the reasons for your answer.

It will have no practical impact on anything at all, which is why it is not a suitable subject for legislation.

Equalities

Q4. What overall impact is the proposed Bill likely to have on equality, taking account of the following protected characteristics (under the Equality Act 2010): age, disability, gender re-assignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, sexual orientation?

Neutral (neither positive nor negative)

Please explain the reasons for your response including the impact on people with particular protected characteristics

None whatsoever. It is a totally meaningless gesture.

Sustainability

Q5. Any new law can impact on work to protect and enhance the environment, achieve a sustainable economy, and create a strong, healthy, and just society for future generations.

Do you think the proposal could impact in any of these areas? (If you do not have a view then skip to next question)

Please explain the reasons for your answer, including what you think the impact of the proposal could be, and if there are any ways you think the proposal could avoid negative impacts?

The proposal will negatively affect efforts to create a strong, healthy, and just society for future generations by undermining important moral concepts of responsibility, guilt, restitution, judicial conviction and pardon. These concepts matter and they should not be abused to make meaningless gestures.

General

Q6. Do you have any other additional comments or suggestions on the proposed Bill (which have not already been covered in any of your responses to earlier questions)?

No.
